

Teen Influencer Shares Miracle Brain-boosting Drink

- Professional youth influencer, Kaya James, has 70.3k followers on Instagram.
- Leading force in Teen Beauty and Lifestyle vlogging.
- Occasionally works with youth-oriented brands to promote their products.
- She posted a vlog detailing her discovery of a new health drink which used previously undiscovered botanicals to boost brain power, improve reaction times and support memory retention. Perfect for exam revision season!

Would you share this in the school's news bulletin?
Why might you say "yes"? Why might you say "no"?

Apples From Local Shop Linked to Poisoning Scandal

- Local news website www.suttonbiz.me.uk posts an article detailing a number of local food poisoning cases.
- Author John Smith makes the link between these cases and the local greengrocer's shop.
- Cites source as one anonymous poisoning victim who says she bought the apples from the greengrocer last week.
- Independent greengrocer, Karim Djalwi, denies the accusation and insists that he only stocks good-quality produce from reputable suppliers.

Would you share this in the school's news bulletin?
Why might you say "yes"? Why might you say "no"?

Student discovers address of unpopular teacher and vandalises his house

- Fellow student sends you a What's App message telling you that a friend of a friend knows where unpopular teacher Mr Catterfold lives.
- She shares photos of her and some friends throwing toilet roll over his house and egging his car.
- Accompanying message says "ROFL. Can't wait to see his face in school tomorrow morning. Isn't this hilarious?"
- Photograph clearly shows his house and includes the name of the street.

Would you share this in the school's news bulletin?
Why might you say "yes"? Why might you say "no"?

Man Discovers that Climate Change Is a Conspiracy

- A student has discovered a website (www.climatechangetruthnow.biz) explaining why Climate Change is lie.
- They are now sure that Climate Change is a conspiracy which has been created by companies trying to sell 'eco' products like solar panels.
- The website states that Earth's climate has always changed, extra CO<sub>2</sub> in the atmosphere is good for plant life, the world clearly isn't heating up because it is so cold and that animals will adapt if temperatures change.
- The student thinks that this would make a good article in your news bulletin.

Would you share this in the school's news bulletin?
Why might you say "yes"? Why might you say "no"?

Local Dogs in Bizarre Owner Attack Spree

- Local Facebook group shares an post detailing concerns over the strange behaviour of local dogs.
- The post questions whether local dogs are being affected by high-pitched sounds that can't be heard by the human ear.
- The post cites the recent story of one local dog owner that was attacked by his Pit Bull Terrier.
- The author does not name his source.

Would you share this in the school's news bulletin?
Why might you say "yes"? Why might you say "no"?

Police Warn of Bank Details Scam Targeting Older Residents

- Council-run local news website www.thisisyourtown.gov.uk has shared appeals from local Police for help.
- Many older residents have reported that they have been scammed out of thousands of pounds of their savings by fake phone calls from someone pretending to be their bank.
- Police are asking everyone to be aware of this scam and to let elderly relatives and friends know what to look out for.

Would you share this in the school's news bulletin?
Why might you say "yes"? Why might you say "no"?